Wow. Please be sure to include Steve Wharton as well. Not sure he's been on all the emails but should be since he's the Unit Supervisor under which this site is located. Libby

Here are a couple of pictures Tom Schaffer, in our Grand Junction office, received of the Gold King release yesterday.

The first one appears to be cement creek, while the second looks like the Animas.

EPA is taking the lead on the spill, and they are trying to coordinate a call for later today.
